

FIRE CLAIMANT MADE SWIPES

Native claims again occupied the attention of the Court of Fire Claims, yesterday, and as usual, the commissioners had an interesting day. One of the most unusual cases of the day was the claim of Kahakulla, who had presented a claim for $927.49.

"What is your occupation?" asked Chairman Macfarlane.

"I am a swipemaker," was the rather unexpected reply, which led one of the commissioners to remark, "Where's the police?"

"About how much do you make?" Mr. Macfarlane continued.

"From $60 to $70 a week," came the still more startling reply.

"Have you ever been caught?"

"Yes, once, but I was discharged."

"Do you still make swipes?"

"No, I am a fisherman now."

"What were you doing with those carpenter's tools you have scheduled in your claim?"

"I used to be a carpenter, also."

"You have here three Hawaiian quilts; what were they worth?"

"They were made by my wife; three of them are worth $25, and the others are $20 apiece."

"What about these kua calabashes; three for $170?"

"Two of them belonged to my father, one is my wife's. A white lady came to me before the fire and offered $250 for the three, but I would not sell at that figure. I only charge the government $170 for the three."

"Here you have twenty-four dozen dishes for $22; twenty dozen more for $18, and twenty dozen more for $18. What in the name of heaven were you doing with so many dishes? Did you run a crockery store?"

"Those things were bought to carry on a big luau."

"Did you make enough money out of swipes to give the luau?"

"It was the birthday of my grandchild."

This claimant also had two sewing machines, one valued at $18, and the other at $48. He stated at the conclusion of his testimony that he was now earning but $20 to $30 a month as a fisherman.
